COLUMNS OF U. S. 1ST ARMY INFANTRY, TANKS AND HEAVY ARTILLERY POUR ACROSS THE RHINE, EXPANDING THE REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD TO 3 MILES ALONG 9-MILE FRONT

Berlin Broadcast Says Virtually All 1st Army Has Crossed the River

TEMPORARY BRIDGES

st Nazi Foothold North of Cologne Has Been Shot Down

International News Service columns of U. S. First Army infantry, tanks and heavy artillery poured across the Rhine river to expanding the Remagen bridgehead to three miles along a nine-mile front.

Berlin broadcast said that virtually all of the American First Army had crossed the Rhine and the bridgehead was 12 miles wide. The Germans also claimed that their Army forces had thrown a number of temporary bridges across the Rhine at Remagen to insure the flow of reinforcements to the east, but they added that Nazi artillery and planes had knocked down those bridges.

This was not verified by official sources. INS war correspondent Carson cabled from the First Army front that 23 of 47 German bombers which staged do-or-die attacks on the bridge had been shot down by American anti-aircraft fire.

British and Dominion forces of the Canadian First Army shattered the last German foothold north of the river when they effected a junction with American Ninth Army troops to exterminate the battered German bridgehead in the West.

Third Army artillery beat at the river for Coblenz while Third Army armored columns pushed to within five miles of the city. New aerial assaults followed up the river yesterday and last night as the U. S. Army pounded Berlin and other German cities. RAF block-busters were based on the German capital in a day attack, while both British and American planes assailed other targets in daylight raids. Submarine building yards at Bremen, Hamburg and Kiel were attacked. Oil refineries were bombed. A city was hit by 4,000 to 5,000 tons of bombs.

In the eastern front, powerful Army forces pounded closer to Baltic ports of Danzig and Gdynia. Soviet troops captured German stronghold of Koelsin, 10 miles southwest of Gdynia, while Russian shells were tossed to the streets of Danzig. The Russian communiqué said that forces had reached the shores of the Baltic west of Kolobrzeg, "thus cutting the withdrawal routes of the enemy garrison."

FARM SCHOOL TO OPEN NEW TERM, APRIL 6TH

Suggests to Boys 15 Years of Age and Over to Study Agriculture

THE OUTLOOK IS GOOD

FARM SCHOOL, MAR. 7.—With a new school term ready to start April 6, open to boys 15 years of age and over with tuition free—the National Farm School, at Farm School, Pa., is doing its bit in the war effort by suggesting to young men—to give scientific and practical agriculture some consideration.

Founded nearly 50 years ago, the school offers an ideal agricultural education to young men, particularly to those brought up in urban communities. Close correlation of instruction between farm practice and classroom study, makes it possible for students to adjust themselves rapidly to their new environment and way of life.

"Never before have the opportunities in agriculture been as promising," declared Dr. Louis Nussbaum, president of Farm School. "When this war is over those who have been trained in institutions like Farm School, will be equipped to become the skilled leaders needed to rehabilitate food production all over the world."

The school just recently lowered its admission age to 15 years, with the idea of attracting a larger student body.

Young men entering the new class in April will be trained by experts in the field of scientific agriculture as well as in actual outdoor practices on the school's 1,000-acre farm.

Already many new crops from which new plastics are developed are being grown in the United States. Soy beans and sunflowers are being planted in this war period.

Furious Aerial Onslaughts at Both Ends, Eastern Front

Moscow.—Furious aerial onslaughts were carried out against the Germans today at both ends of the eastern fighting front in support of the Red Army offensive to break the Nazi grip on the Baltic and to the Soviets in stemming a German counter-drive in the Lake Balaton area. The Germans reported heavy air action over the Stettin area as the Soviets intensified their attack on the city, port of Berlin and the Nazis said also that Swinemunde, outer harbor of Stettin, was subjected to attack. The Baltic drive by the Russians saw Red Army assault forces hammer closer to both Danzig and Gdynia after the town of Gdolin, nine miles southwest to Gdynia and 13 miles northwest of Danzig, was overrun with numerous other localities. "The Red Army is putting an end to Nazi domination in the Baltic and at the same time endangering the Nazi positions in Denmark and Norway," a Moscow commentator said. Great numbers of Soviet Stormovik dive-bombers were sent into the fray in the south in an effort to halt the German drive aimed at the Danube from points north and east of Lake Balaton.

VANDENBERG'S OPPORTUNITY

Part Five

Suspicion and jealousy over Russia is the rock upon which the newly-launched Ship of Peace may split.

It called for all the political adroitness of Winston Churchill, using the war as the anvil for his efforts, to extract a favorable vote for the Yalta report from Parliament without bringing out expressions of English mistrust of Russia's attitude.

The fact is that the Russian picture of post-war Europe, which was largely ratified by Churchill and Roosevelt at the Yalta meeting, is the exact opposite of that which England has always considered essential for the preservation of the British Empire.

Great Britain has always insisted upon a balance of power in Europe. The fact that, whenever that balance of power was disturbed, war resulted, is an argument which perhaps can be used either way—to prove that the plan is defective, or to prove that the balance of power ought to be carefully maintained.

At any event, under the Yalta agreement, and equally so under the separate pact between France and Russia, the European balance of power will be upset for the next one or two generations.

Germany is to be reduced, as a measure of military precaution, to relative impotence for a long probationary period.

Italy and Spain apparently are so exhausted by warfare that they cannot resume their former stature.

Russia on the East and France on the West apparently plan to rule most of Europe by partnership.

From the English point of view: this is to say that England would sit across the narrow English channel from a new colossus, whose friendship is by no means certain—an empire running from Dakar on the West Africa tip more than halfway around the world to the Bering Straits.

Nine Bridge Hero

HERE IS the daring young fellow who prevented the Germans from blowing up the Ludendorf Bridge at Remagen and thus made possible the spectacular Rhine crossing. He is Lt. John Battenfield Mitchell, Pittsburgh, Pa., who provided a ten minute margin between life and death when he disconnected the enemy wires. (International)

TWO SOLDIERS ARE GIVEN BRONZE STARS

Lawrence J. Hufnell, T 5, and Sgt. James Doster Are Ones Honored

CITED FOR BRAVERY

For heroic service to their country two young men from this section have been awarded Bronze Star Medals.

The ones so honored are Lawrence J. Hufnell, T 5, Buckley Street, and Sgt. James Doster, Edgely.

Hufnell was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for "heroic service in connection with military operations against the enemy." In the vicinity of Buchet, Germany, 20 Sept. 1944.

According to the citation, as Hufnell, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hufnell, 327 Buckley Street, "was approaching a battalion command post to relieve the switchboard operator then on duty, the enemy began shelling the road. As he neared his destination, a shell exploded nearby, wounding him. Realizing, however, that adequate communications were essential, he made his way to the command post and manned the switchboard, remaining on duty until the following morning. His actions contributed materially to the uninterrupted maintenance of communications within the battalion during a critical period."

The young man also holds the good conduct medal and the Purple Heart award.

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC

(Delayed)—For his outstanding achievement in leading his squad in knocking out a "Jap" machine-gun position on Saipan, Marine Sgt. James Doster, son of Mrs. Clara Doster, Woodside avenue, Edgely, Pa., has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal.

The award, which was accompanied by a citation from Lt. Gen. Holland M. Smith, took place at an overseas base.

The citation says in part: "On one occasion Sgt. Doster, without regard for his own personal safety, took his squad forward and destroyed an enemy machine-gun supported by five enemy rifles."

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

AMERICANS SPAN RHINE AT 2 MORE POINTS

Paris.—Spanning of the Rhine by American engineers at two additional points north of the original crossing site at Remagen was reported by the Germans today as U. S. First Army forces rapidly expanded the width and depth of their bridgehead on the east bank.

The German DNB agency issued reports that the Americans had constructed their own bridges at points north and south of the town of Rheinbreitbach, about three miles north of Remagen.

With Berlin reporting that the bridgehead opposite Remagen had been expanded at least to a width of 12 and one-half miles and a depth of two and one-half, the Germans asserted that virtually all of Gen. Hodges' First Army forces had moved eastward into the bridgehead.

Two armored and two infantry divisions, at least, were moved over the spans thrown up near Rheinbreitbach, the Nazis said.

As the First Army pressed its operations across the Rhine, the American Ninth and Canadian First in the north wiped out the last of the Nazi bridgehead on the west bank of the Rhine opposite Wesel.

The Tenth and fourth armored divisions of Gen. Patton's U. S. Third Army forces were squeezing the Germans into a pocket 17 miles long north of the Moselle River, headquarters reported. Nearly a score of towns and villages fell to Patton's forces who cleared the north bank of the Moselle from the vicinity of Coblenz to Cochen.

The collapse of the Trier-Coblenz pocket of German resistance was expected within the next day or two, with the Tenth and Fourth divisions squeezing from both sides. Northeast of Trier, armored forces of the Third Army captured Longnich and Longen and cleared the enemy from a small number of enemy armored vehicles.

Reports from the Third Army front indicated that the Germans may be planning to evacuate across the Moselle into the Saar.

FIRE LOSS IN BUCKS WAS $168,975 IN 3-MONTH PERIOD

Bucks County Ass'n Holds Quarterly Meeting At Buckingham

LAHASKA WAS HOST

Firemen Answered 34 Calls During the Past Quarter

BUCKINGHAM, Mar. 12.—The total loss by fire in Bucks County during the past three months was $168,975. This is according to the report of Bucks Co. fire marshal Raymond Strunk, of Quakertown, made at the quarterly session of Bucks County Firemen's Association.

Insurance carried on fires where property occurred totaled $229,000; and the property at risk is valued at $372,800.

The March meeting took place in Tyro Hall Grange Hall with Midway Fire Co. of Lahaska as host; while the Ladies' Auxiliaries of the county gathered on the lower floor with Midway Auxiliary hostess for them.

The business meeting of the firemen was in charge of William L. Stackhouse, Doylestown, president. Mr. Stackhouse responded to the formal welcome of John Fetterolf, president of Midway Co. The minutes and the treasurer's reports were given by H. Clinton Reiff, Silverdale and Louis C. Leedom, Yardley, respectively; with Robert D. Landis, Quakertown, giving his report as financial secretary.

In his report fire marshal Strunk told that there were 34 alarms; two barn fires; 11 house fires; seven outbuildings; seven chimneys; one borough building; and one rooming house.

Among the conflagrations discussed at length were two at Langhorne, the town hall and the "Bellevue" (used recently as a convalescent home), these being discussed by Langhorne fire chief Charles Prall; Friends Hospital barn near Trevoise, by Leonard Roberts; the fire at the Paul Starkey home, by Charles Steiner, chief of Fallsington company.

One death by fire was reported, that of James Harkins, of College Park, Croydon, who succumbed to burns sustained in the boiler room of Hunter Mfg. Corp. plant at Croydon.

There were three arson cases also discussed, one each at Yardley and Langhorne and one in the upper part of Bucks County.

A meeting of the fire chiefs of the county is scheduled for Wednesday evening next at Quakertown West End, when matters of interest to the firemen will be discussed. It is planned to organize a police association at that time among the firemen.

Harry H. Lahr, representing Bucks Co. Rescue Squad, Croydon, addressed the association, offering services of the squad whenever needed. Mr. Lahr asked that the squad be called in sufficient time to render service if possible, rather than at the last minute. He told that a large number of members provides ample rotation of aides, thus giving quick service.

The speaker of the evening was George Sotter, stained glass artist. Mr. Sotter showed natural color slides of stained glass windows.

Officers were nominated, with election scheduled for June. Those nominated are: President, William L. Stackhouse, Doylestown; 1st vice pres't, Lloyd Y. Crounham, Dublin; 2nd vice pres't, Leonard Roberts, Trevoise; 3rd vice pres't, Raymond Locke, Chalfont; sec'y, H. Clinton Reiff, Silverdale; financial sec'y, Robert D. Landis, Quakertown; treasurer, Louis C. Leedom, Yardley; and chaplain, the Rev. Arthur W. Eastburn, Eddington.

Many economists who never met a payroll or managed a business announce glibly that the post-war national income will be stabilized between $150,000,000,000 and $200,000,000,000 a year. This compares with a swollen income of $157,000,000,000 last year and less than $90,000,000,000 in any peacetime year.

Now comes Dr. Rufus S. Tucker, economist of the General Motors Corporation, with the prediction that the national income will drop sharply during the first two post-war years and then will rise to a point below $100,000,000,000 in the next three years. These figures are based on the pre-war dollar, Dr. Tucker says. Gauged by the post-war dollar, which is expected to be inflated, the national income will be somewhat higher.

Dr. Tucker says prophets of a huge national income after the war permit themselves to be fooled by three factors. There will be fewer than 60,000,000 post-war jobs, there will be several millions of unemployed, and production per worker will not be as large as has been predicted.

People are wise to save money, advises Dr. Tucker, because the postwar period will not be the rosy-eyed era that some of the starchy-elitist planners envision.

ROOM FOR COMPETITION

Most Americans oppose single-company operation of this country's international air lines after the war. The next step following single-company operation could easily be government operation.

In the infancy of transoceanic flight, it was feasible and sound to restrict the field to the one firm which had done the pioneering work and which had the know-how to do the job. But that stage of aviation has been left far behind in the swift development of the war years.

American planes are now crossing all the oceans of the world on regular, daily scheduled flights. Planes of large variety are now in operation capable of non-stop oceanic hops. Crossings have become almost a matter of routine and thousands of men have been trained in carrying on this aerial traffic.

The air transport commands of the Army and Navy have been primarily responsible for this astounding growth. But men of all the major commercial airlines have shared in the undertaking. Most of them are now hoping and planning to expand in the international field after the war.

Some control of international air transport and agreements between nations is obviously essential to prevent competition from turning into chaos. But airline monopoly is no more in the American tradition than monopolies in any other field. Competition assures a steadier and healthier growth.

Panic now sweeping all Germany is as nothing compared to the effect the Four Horsemen will create as they sweep through it.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol July 3, 1884. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

It is estimated that there are living in the vicinity of Lynn County, Kansas, between 150 and 200 persons who were former residents of Bucks County.

A writer in the "Intelligencer" complains of the slow growth of Bucks County compared with its neighbors, and because Bristol is 220 years old and has no more than 6,000 inhabitants, is disposed to find fault with her. Dam the Delaware, argues the correspondent, and Bristol would be as large as Trenton. It is possible that damming the Delaware would be of great benefit for manufacturing purposes on this side of the river, but the "Intelligencer" correspondent overlooks the fact that Bristol, since she has become a manufacturing town, has made rapid strides in wealth and population, notwithstanding the Delaware is not yet dammed. If the rest of Bucks County had kept pace with Bristol in the item of population, it would have advanced over 60 per cent in the decade from 1870 to 1880, and the figures furnished by the census reports, show that Bristol's ratio of increase in population is

When this anxiety for the future well-being of England is coupled with the still unsettled question of what Russia may decide she wants in Southern Asia, it is easy to picture the potentials of the tension between England and Russia.

This tension is not to be considered solely in a military sense. For the next several years, the big bone of contention probably will be world markets.

Russia could easily wind up being the partner in the world peace organization which controls the largest and richest world markets, and thereby win a stranglehold upon maritime and commercial Britain which would threaten to reduce England to a decidedly second-rate status.

Regardless of the exigencies of the moment which produced a vote of confidence in the Crimean conference, it cannot be expected that England will accept any such minor role with complacency.

America's interest is perhaps rather less in the question of whether Russia or England is pre-eminent than that there be in the present peace proposals some sound basis for continued harmonious relations between the two nations.

We would suffer from any failure to clarify their status and intentions under which future strife and even war might develop. Means of controlling the large, as well as the small, must be available.

This, of course, brings up the general question of postwar economic relationships.

This is a field in which Senator Vandenberg again has special training and background which may make him far better able than the other delegates both to understand and to solve the complex trade and commercial relationships which will be involved.

Although England is popularly believed to be a free trade nation, this is far from being the fact. Actually the trend in Great Britain has been to increase three kinds of protections to her home industries: first, outright protective tariffs; second, flat limitations on competitive imports; third, special trade pacts on a "most favored nation" basis.

In the last analysis, the success of any long-range peace program will depend upon two separate factors, in both of which the advice of Senator Vandenberg will be of great potential aid.

One is the working out of a more satisfactory plan of representation and voting under which the large nations—collectively and individually—are curbed from dictatorship in world affairs, and the smaller nations are protected from political oppression at the hands of their powerful neighbors.

The other is the equally important question of seeking some common denominator of trade relations, flexible enough to integrate the activities of "total" states like Russia with the traditionally gold standard banking and protectionistic ideals of England, and to give all nations a fair share of the world's goods and markets.

Without fair play in the field of commerce, no peace program; no matter how eloquently worded or how strongly backed up with force of arms, can possibly endure.

to large acreage for supplying oil and resins for the manufacture of synthetic products which show promise of replacing many items now made of metal. Progressive farmers of America recognize the truth of the prediction that "the automobile and the air plane of the future will be grown by the farmer."

The National Farm School provides a basic training in the growing of these newer crops. Students in the three-year course learn not only how to till the soil or to raise livestock, but actually help to increase war food production. There are courses in dairying, poultry, field crops, farm machinery, vegetable and fruit growing, greenhouse and landscape gardening.

The school offers outstanding athletic facilities with a department headed by Coach Samuel B. Samuels, who for 25 years has been turning out championship teams in football, basketball, baseball and other sports.

Students may enroll until July 1, according to President Nussbaum. The school is supported by voluntary contributions.

Right now over 300 graduates of the school are in the armed forces in various sections of the United States.

Parents are urged to consider The National Farm School for their sons at this time. No better opportunity to render a vital wartime service and at the same time to train for an important post-war career, has ever been offered the 15-year-old boy and those not otherwise qualified to enter the armed forces.

Home Service of The Red Cross is Great Aid

The four major parts of Red Cross home service were described by Miss Landreth as:

- (1) Communication and information service to fighting men and their families in time of emergency;
 - (2) Helping facilitate emergency furloughs by reporting on home conditions at the request of commanding officers;
 - (3) Assistance to servicemen, veterans and their dependents in presenting claims for government benefits;
 - (4) Financial aid and guidance to servicemen and their families in time of special need.
- "From the moment a man dons his uniform until after he is re-established in his community, Red Cross home service is available to serve him," Miss Landreth stated. "In the difficult days of reconversion, returning men of Bristol will find the Bristol Red Cross chapter eager to assist them with advice and guidance in facing the problems of peace and readjustment."

O. Great God, our Eternal Father, furnish us this day with faith and fortitude which we so much need to win the victory over sin and ingratitude. Grant us release from the tensions of the times, and that we may cast all our cares upon Jesus Christ, Thy only Son, who bore our sins to the cross of Calvary, and keep us under the Shadow of Thy wings.

We ask it in the name, which is above every other name, even Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

Dear Joe

... And so for the duration I have given up frilly frocks and am trim in khaki. I'm thrilled with headlines about the war in Europe. But you're in the Pacific—and the war won't be over for us until the rising sun goes down.

We can't think of our war successes in terms of successful engagements—without counting the toll in dying and wounded men. If I, as a Medical Department WAC, can help make the "Road Back" less difficult for even only one battle-scarred veteran, then I am truly worthy of my great heritage as an American.

Although I am completely inexperienced, the Army is giving me free technical training for a selected job—training that will do a job today and be invaluable in the glorious tomorrow.

I know you are proud of me and ...

YOUTH LEAGUE TO HOLD PLAYOFFS HERE TONIGHT

Methodists Will Oppose The Celtics; Aces Will Clash With Ramblers

RAMBLERS FAVORITES

Methodists Entered Playoffs By Defeating Third Ward Eagles

The playoffs of the Bristol Youth League will get under way tonight on the Mutual Aid floor where two games will be played. In the first contest, the Harriman Methodists will meet the Celtics while in the second encounter, the Bristol Aces will meet the Ramblers. Opening tap-off will take place at 7:30 o'clock sharp.

The Ramblers are the favorites to top the championship. They finished the season unbeaten and rolled up some large scores. Only Vito Della's Celtics furnished the closest opposition to the Ramblers, they having lost but one game.

The Harriman Methodists entered the playoffs by beating the Third Ward Eagles, 47-21, last night on the Mutual Aid floor. Had the Eagles triumphed, they would have entered the playoffs as the fourth team.

Walters and Paoletti led the Methodists in scoring with 16 and 11 points, respectively. The Methodists' guards also did a fine job in holding down the scoring of Johnny Rodgers, point-scoring ace of the Eagles. He was held to a pair of field goals.

Trusted Employee Charged With Thefts

CHALFONT, Mar. 12—Charged with the theft of merchandise valued at over $1200, George Raley, 39, a trusted employee of Richard F. Lusse, owner of Forest Park, Chalfont, for 20 years, has been arrested and is awaiting a further investigation.

He was arrested in New York City a few days ago aboard a boat on which he had taken a job as a butcher. Trooper Leland Emery, of the Doylestown sub-station of State Police, and Assistant County Detective William L. Stackhouse went to New York and brought Raley back to Bucks county. The warrant, charging larceny, was issued by Justice of the Peace William Wrigley.

Lusse went to Florida early this year to take charge of the estate of his father who had recently died. According to police, it was while Lusse was in Florida that Raley committed the thefts with which he is charged by Lusse.

Raley, police say, left Philadelphia at 5 a. m. on the morning of February 17th, the day before Lusse arrived back from Florida. He had taken a job aboard a merchant marine boat.

According to the information furnished police by Lusse, Raley is charged with the theft of 50,000 rounds of ammunition from Forest Park stockroom, ammunition that was used during the summer in the park shooting gallery.

He is also charged with collecting certain rentals belonging to Lusse, amounting to about $100, and keeping it.

Lusse states that 200 cartons of cigarettes were also stolen from the park stock room. Raley admits taking 15 cartons, police say.

Four hundred pounds of meat is missing at the park, out of a large ice box. Police say that Raley admits eating about 100 pounds.

Four cases of liquor are listed as missing, and Raley told police that he drank only four bottles.

The police were informed that 200 gallons of gasoline was stolen while Lusse was in Florida and that gasoline stamps covering 2,000 gallons were stolen.

Raley is also charged with wrecking Lusse's automobile on Route 202 last January when he ran into a cinder truck.

Raley, according to police, admitted selling some of the shells in New York City. Police say that he has admitted that he got about $600 for the things that he took, but denies that he took loot valued at $1200.

Three Bristol Companies Are To Be Given Honors

NEW YORK, Mar. 12—The National Association of Manufacturers announced today that its 360 founding companies, including three Bristol companies, would be awarded special certificates for their outstanding contributions to American industrial progress "as evidenced by their long and active leadership as founding companies."

The three Bristol companies are William H. Grundy & Co., Thomas L. Leedom Co., and Patterson Parchment Paper Co. Of the 360 companies which helped to organize the NAM in Cincinnati exactly half a century ago, 53 are located in Pennsylvania.

Announcement of the awards, to be presented at a series of special ceremonies during the year, was made by William P. Witherow, president of Blaw-Knox Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., and NAM golden anniversary chairman.

NAM's membership now totals more than 12,500 companies in 48 states.

Indicative of the swift progress of modern-day inventive genius within industry, Mr. Witherow said, is the fact that none of the founding companies originally represented "the industries of aviation, motion pictures, television, radio and plastics, to mention a few—all of which are now products of these charter companies."

"The great industries of 1895 are the great industries of today—but the development of such industries as electronics and aviation, nonexistent half a century ago, is a true example of what American management, working with free labor, can do in double-quick time," he added.
